Bishop Becomes Pawn In City Hall Gambit

TORONTO (UPI) — Mayor Nathan Phillips played his king safely at the city hall yesterday but almost lost a bishop. During his official welcome of ex-King Peter of Yugoslavia to the city, Bishop Dionisije of Chicago, head of the Serbian Orthodox Church in North America, angrily fumed that Mayor Phillips had kept him waiting for 10 minutes. When finally admitted, Bishop Dionisije agreed to sign the guest book on condition he could put down the fact he'd been kept waiting.

Area Faces Crisis

Greater Victoria is facing a juvenile detention home crisis which could bring about a whole new system of dealing with juvenile offenders.

Lt.-Col. W. S. Dingley, superintendent of the juvenile detention home on Coldharbor Road, confirmed yesterday that he intends to resign.

The impending resignation will create a serious problem because in the 12 years Col. and Mrs. Dingley have been running the home, seven days a week, finding substitutes for them for even brief and infrequent vacations has been difficult.

DISSATISFACTION

It also is expected to bring to a head growing dissatisfaction with juvenile home conditions.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, chairman of city council's welfare committee, and city representative on the juvenile home committee, last night pressed strongly for establishment of a combined family court and juvenile home to solve the problem of juvenile delinquency.

"Delinquents come from families where parents don't handle their children, can't handle them, or don't care," she said. "A family court is the only way we can get at the parents.

COST MONEY

"It is going to cost money but if we can only save two juveniles and make them good citizens it will be worthwhile."

Saving the cost of keeping two juveniles in detention for a year would pay the salaries of two probation officers who would be necessary under the family court system, Ald. Wilson added.

"It would be far better, too, to have all the municipalities in it," she said. "Now when a juvenile does something wrong you have to get reports from the different municipalities, which is utterly rediculous."

"A family court could help a lot of parents who aren't quite sure where they are going. The court would give them some direction."

The combined court and detention home would necessitate a new building, she added, but one will be needed sometime.

Mortimore Thanked

G. E. Mortimore, who won a 1958 National Newspaper Award for a series on Indians published in The Daily Colonist, received the thanks of B.C. Indians Sunday.

The articles produced an "increased awareness" in the Indians' problems, said George Clutesi, 556 Raynor, an Indian artist who said he was speaking for B.C. Indians.

Mr. Mortimore's accurate reporting and his ability to understand the Indian's problems added interest to the series, said Mr. Clutesi at a tea arranged by the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society.

Art Stott, a columnist for the Times, praised the writer and the stories and spoke about the appreciation they received from newspaper men.

Sandham Graves, editor-in-chief of the Colonist, told the more than 50 persons present the paper was proud to run the articles.

Emlyn Williams

One-Man Theatre Superb

By BERT BINNY

A superb Welsh "invasion" of Victoria took place last night at the Royal Theatre.

It was mounted in the person of Emlyn Williams, actor, dramatist and stage director who brought with him the very real picture of Dylan Thomas, whose works provided the entire program.

The late poet, in turn, through his vivid, penetrating descriptions, pungent comment and lucid storytelling, disclosed to a large and enthusiastic audience a large and vital series of Welsh characters.

Of course, without the superb art of Mr. Williams, the poetry would not have been half as entertaining but the basic material was excellent.

"A Boy Growing Up" as the program was entitled is, in other words, the supremely successful combination of masterly material and unexcelled exposition.

Its great successes in both London and New York were made quite understandable in Victoria last night.
